A LETTER FROM THE PRESIDENT

from Angelo Binaghi

The year 2025 brought Italian tennis and padel into a new era that can no longer be understood solely through the thrilling results on the court – however extraordinary they may be – but must also be measured in terms of its social, economic and cultural significance. That is why we have decided to let the numbers speak for themselves.

And these figures illustrate a very clear picture: today our movement is one of the country's major sporting assets, a reality capable of generating value far beyond the confines of the court of play. In excess of 6 million people play tennis and padel in Italy: 4.6 million tennis and 2.1 million padel, to be precise. The number of enthusiasts is even higher: 17.9 million for tennis and 5.4 million for padel. These figures not only reaffirm the reach of our sports but also their capacity to become a stable feature in the day-to-day lives of Italy's populace.

Tennis, in particular, is now the second most popular sport in Italy in terms of the number of fans, having grown 6% in just one year. This figure speaks louder than any slogan about just how deeply our country has come to identify with this sport.

The successes of Italian players, who continue to make us proud and boost Italy's prestige abroad, go some way to explaining these figures. But there is also, and perhaps more importantly, the commitment and teamwork of the Federation, the clubs, the coaches, the match officials, the families, volunteers and organisers that contribute to the growth of our movement each and every day.

And it is precisely this collective dimension that makes another number from the report even more significant: in Italy tennis and padel generate an overall economic impact of over 8.7 billion euros, supporting 63 thousand jobs and producing a social return of 4.07 euros for every euro invested.
This means that our movement is not only creating sport, spectacle and passion, but also jobs, wellbeing and shared value for the entire country system.

At the same time, the growth of the federal network confirms that this progress is no one-off but is, in fact, structural.
Today we can count on 2,769 tennis and padel schools and 15,422 certified FITP coaches, a technical and educational infrastructure that represents a solid base for our future.
Rather than tempt us to rest on our laurels, these results place even greater responsibility upon us.

We must strive to keep on winning, of course, but we must also continue to grow and innovate to make tennis and padel increasingly accessible, widespread and popular.
We must take these sports into a growing number of schools, bolstering their spread across the country, amplifying opportunities to play and investing in the quality of our system.

This is the challenge we face in the coming years – to transform a great sporting moment into long-lasting, organised growth that is capable of leaving a tangible legacy.
Our achievements make us proud.

The road ahead makes us even more determined.

Tennis, together with swimming and athletics, are confirmed as sports characterized by a notable balance between the numbers of men and women who play. This even distribution highlights how these sports are able to attract members of both sexes in a uniform manner, encouraging an inclusive and representative sporting environment. This parity in participation is also testament to these sports' capacities to respond to the interests and motivations of a heterogenous public, contributing to promoting a sporting culture that is fairer and more inclusive.

THE GROWTH OF THE TOURNAMENT OVER THE YEARS

Ever since the ATP Finals arrived in Italy in 2021, at a time when there was still widespread disruption caused by the pandemic, the event has experienced constant growth. The first editions, which had a limited capacity, attracted increasing numbers of spectators and a growing interest. In parallel, also the economic impact on the local area has grown year on year, thanks to the boost to tourism, services and related sectors. Today the Finals represent one of the highest profile, and most profitable, sports events hosted in Italy.

Of all the single-sport channels, SuperTennis recorded the highest average viewing figures in 2024. SuperTennis is the only one to broadcast its programming free-to-air. These positive results confirm the excellent strategic investment made by the Italian Tennis and Padel Federation since 2008 to bring tennis and padel into more and more Italian homes.

Two of the top three events were organized by the FITP. The top 7 events all related to tennis, which occupies 70% of the top 10 on this leaderboard.

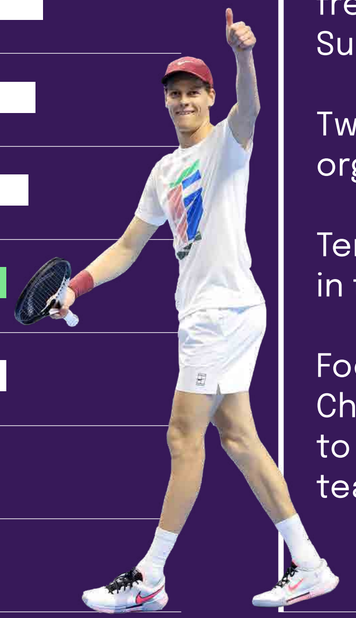

Although Football does not feature in this Top 10, according to YouGov, it continues to be the most popular sport in Italy.

1. THE SPORTSINDEX IS AN INDEX CALCULATED BASED ON THE AVERAGE OF SIX COMBINED METRICS, INCLUDING SPECTATOR IMPRESSIONS, PERCEIVED QUALITY OF THE EVENT, VALUE ATTRIBUTED TO THE EVENT, SPECTATOR SATISFACTION, EVENT REPUTATION AND THE SPECTATOR'S LIKELIHOOD OF RECOMMENDING THE EVENT.

Two of the top seven were organised by the FITP.
